INTRODUCTION

The task of preparing such a "Record" as this cannot be fully appreciated except by those who have some knowledge of the difficulties, the infinite number of details, the innumerable opportunities for errors and inaccuracies, and the large measure of patience and toil necessary for the completion of the undertaking. In an itinerant ministry like that of the Methodist Episcopal Church, with the many possibilities of change at every Annual Conference, and ad interim as well, more than ordinary care must needs be exercised in the interest of accuracy and completeness. Even while the book is being printed, the Spring Conferences are being held and there will be as always changes. But this does not lessen the value of such a book as this. It is surprising what an amount of information has been packed into these six or seven hundred pages, information concerning the three thousand or more men—and women—who have been students here in Drew Theological Seminary, and who have carried the "Drew spirit" literally to the ends of the earth. Nowhere is this spirit more finely expressed than in the Commemoration Hymn, written by the Reverend Frank Mason North, D.D., LL.D., son of Charles C. North, Esquire, one of the founders of the school, for the Semi-Centennial, observed in 1916-17.

Thou Lord of Light, across the years
Thy shining path of love we see:
Bright glows amidst our joys and fears
The ardor of our faith in Thee.

The Teacher Thou of those who taught,
The Master Guide through learning's maze,
The theme of their profoundest thought,
The object of their reverent praise.

Their hearts interpreted Thy word,
Through them Thy messages were sent,
Within these walls Thy voice was heard,
Here wisdom found its sacrament.

We thank Thee for these years of power,
For stalwart souls, for gentle life,
For men transformed to meet the hour
Of blasting wrong, of surging strife:—

For men who gird the world with flame,
Who count, for Thee, all things but loss,
Who challenge nations, in Thy name,
To hear the story of Thy cross,

INTRODUCTION

Yet beating through our gratitude,
We feel the pulse of coming days;
Thy truth must stand where it has stood;
New darkness waits its deathless rays.

High courage grant, the outlook broad,
The strength of joy, the zest for right,
The faith that burns, the sense of God,
Thy fellowship, Thou Lord of light.

It is now sixty years since public announcement was made that Daniel Drew, Esquire, had expressed his purpose to give a large sum for the establishment of a theological school for the technical training of ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This announcement was made at a meeting in the interest of Christian education held in St. Paul's Church, New York City, in January, 1866, the Centennial of American Methodism. It was not until the following year, however, November 6, 1867, that Drew Theological Seminary was formally opened and the work of a significantly great school was begun. From the first its influence was felt. How widespread and how potent this influence has been a study of the pages which follow will disclose, but only in part. A mere record of names and of fields of activities, of books written and the like will give little idea of what has been accomplished the world round by graduates of this Seminary. There are some things which do not easily lend themselves to statistical compilations or mathematical calculations. When Jesus sent his chosen disciples out into the world to represent Him and to do like work as He himself came to do, it was with this divine injunction "As ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give." Nothing was said about sending in monthly reports. He was not fearful of the results, if they really accepted his word. "He that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me."

It would be futile to attempt to tabulate the results of the labors of the disciples of Christ whose names are recorded in this book, of souls reclaimed from error's way, of churches built, of Christian enterprises ventured and achieved, of griefs assuaged, hearts comforted, of little children lifted up into the outstretched arms of their Saviour, of weary pilgrims helped through the Wicket Gate at the end of life's journey. It is enough to know that having freely received they have freely given. There is not a State in the Union, there is hardly a country in the world where students from this Seminary have not gone. From hundreds and hundreds of pulpits they have heralded the Good News; to tens of thousands of homes they have gone with the word which brings healing and light. The contribution of Drew to foreign mission fields is an amazing story of devotion and achievement. Not less notable is the work done by Drew graduates at home. On the frontier among foreign-speaking peoples, in cities with their many-sided problems of poverty, ignorance, and immorality, in suburban towns, in rural communities, in a thousand places in a thousand ways they have sought to establish the kingdom of God in the land of which our fathers died, and for which their sons also have shown themselves willing to die. Many have come to distinction and fame; the Church has called not a few to places of conspicuous leadership, but no less notable even if less conspicuous have been the lives of hundreds of men who in quiet and unostentatious ways, and too often with little recognition of their real worth, have done the work of the Christian ministry, have been faithful shepherds of the flock, and on sabbath days and other days have proclaimed the glorious gospel of the Son of God. The school where such men and women tarried awhile for instruction will never cease to be grateful for the privileges of fellowship in service here in the Forest, and where the fields are white for the harvest. The fruit bespeaks the tree, and the tree rejoices in its fruit.

For this edition of the Alumni Record we are most indebted to the Reverend William Pearson Tolley, Drew 1925, now Alumni Secretary, and for his fine initiative and resourcefulness, for his tireless patience and abundant labors, for his knowledge of the Drew traditions and his exemplification of the Drew spirit, I desire to express my appreciation, and to him and to all who have been associated with him in the compilation of these records, I extend my grateful thanks.

EDITOR'S PREFACE

There have been two previous editions of the Alumni Record, the first appearing in 1895 and the second in 1906. Both were edited by the Reverend Samuel Gardiner Ayres of the Class of 1888.

In the twenty years that have elapsed since the publication of the last edition there have been so many changes and so great an increase in the number of our alumni that it seemed necessary to adopt a new form for individual records and a different arrangement of the material.

In this edition the non-graduates are listed by classes under the year in which they would have graduated, rather than in one alphabetical list as in the previous editions. The records of all graduates of the Seminary may be found under the year in which the diploma or degree was received. Where a student has received more than one diploma or degree his record appears under the first class of which he was a member. The graduate students are listed alphabetically in a separate section. The records, however, of the graduate students who have received either the degree of Master of Theology or Doctor of Theology appear under the year in which the advanced degree was received. Since special students and auditors are not members of any class their records are arranged alphabetically. While the classification is necessarily complex because of the establishment of the Graduate School and College of Missions in addition to the College of Theology, it is hoped that the page headings will make the arrangement intelligible. The index at the back of the book shows not only the classification but also the pages on which the record or name of the student appears.

In the records of students by classes the heading of the even page is descriptive of the material on the following page as well, but the heading of the odd page indicates only the last section on that page.

In the faculty section it was felt that readers would appreciate the duplication of the records of Drew graduates. The plan followed may seem somewhat complicated but will occasion no difficulty if the reader makes use of the index.

The records of women students who have married since leaving the Seminary are entered under their maiden names, with a cross reference from their names after marriage.

The name of a town, unless the contrary is stated, denotes a pastorate. The dates of the beginning and close of a pastorate, or other office, are separated by a short dash (-). If this dash is followed by a punctuation mark it denotes that the office continues to the present time. A long dash (—) indicates that further information is wanting.

The word church is omitted except when it refers to a denomination entered. The name of the church served follows the town and state. The dates of practically all Methodist pastorates are inclusive, that is, from April to April or September to September. A great many alumni requested that the dates be recorded as exclusive, for example, showing only the year 1918 rather than the inclusive date 1918-19. This we should have been glad to do had it not been for the fact that we wished the records to be as uniform as possible. The Conference appointments, therefore, read: Jersey City, N. J., Lafayette, 1914-15; Plainfield, N. J., Grace, 1915-20; Caldwell, N. J., First, 1920-23; etc.

We have used throughout the book the word retired instead of superannuated and superintendent for presiding elder. The name Drew has been used throughout in place of the full name Drew Theological Seminary.

An asterisk before a name (*) indicates decease. A list of abbreviations follows this preface. Immediately preceding the index there is a key to the letters and abbreviations used in the alphabetical index.

The editor wishes to acknowledge his obligation to the alumni and faculty members who have replied so willingly and courteously to his requests for information, to the president of the Seminary for his constant counsel and encouragement, to the Methodist Book Concern printers for their patient cooperation and accurate work, to the many friends and fellow-workers who have shared in the compiling of the material, and especially to the members of the staff in the office of the Seminary without whose devoted and untiring efforts this book could not have been published.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

Drew Theological Seminary, at Madison, New Jersey, an attractive suburb of New York City, is one of the fruits of the first Centenary of American Methodism, probably the most notable memorial of that important denominational celebration. Dr. George R. Crooks, a name forever associated with the Seminary and held in loving remembrance by all of the older Drew men, declared that "the centenary of American Methodism first created in our church the clear consciousness that it was the foremost ecclesiastical body of the country." Along with this consciousness there came the conviction that as a church we owed much more to the country than we had ever accomplished for its intellectual and social elevation. The founding of Drew Seminary was a direct result of the determination to pay the debt as best we could.

It was not established, however, without opposition. There was not unanimity of opinion either as to the necessity or the value of theological education. Methodism had become strong through the efforts of men who with few exceptions were self-trained. The outstanding examples of self-education were held up for imitation, and very naturally sufficed for even the most ambitious young men. With the splendid success of the fathers written large on the pages of denominational history, what need had their sons of the training of the schools? Moreover, the schools had fought the Methodist ministry so long that these same ministers had no little dread of the schools, even when founded and fashioned by themselves.)

For many years Dr. James Strong, a distinguished layman and scholar, and later a greatly honored professor in the Seminary, was almost "a voice in the wilderness" in his plea for the establishment of a theological seminary near New York City. An article from his facile pen appeared in The Christian Advocate of December 22, 1853, urging immediate action in the founding of such a school "to be located in the vicinity of New York, our great commercial metropolis," having "a separate and full course of theological instruction, with a competent faculty, and organized on a scale corresponding with those of other denominations." The article provoked a storm of criticism. The editor of the Advocate had to explain many times why he had admitted the contribution to the columns of his paper, and justified it by the published statement that he himself was opposed to theological education for our ministers. Fourteen years later, when the Seminary was established, the church at large was still hostile to the idea of a trained ministry.

The founding of Drew was made possible by the generosity of Daniel Drew, a Methodist layman of New York City, who as a cattle drover, steamboat navigator, railroad financier and leader in Wall Street speculations had risen from poverty to a place of commanding influence. Mr. Drew had become interested in the founding of a theological school through the influence of Dr. John McClintock, Dr. George R. Crooks, Mr. Charles C. North and others, and he determined to make a thank offering to theological education on the occasion of the Centenary Celebration. Several places were considered in the search for the proper location of such a school and it was not until June, 1867, that The Christian Advocate announced, "the site of the Drew Theological Seminary is finally settled by the purchase of the magnificent estate called 'The Forest' at Madison, N. J., late the residence of W. Gibbons, Esq. The property includes two hundred and twenty-five acres, of which about eighty acres are in the forest, constituting a noble park. The buildings are large, elegant, and commodious, and will be readily adapted to all the purposes of the institution." Part of the estate purchased by Mr. Drew was sold before the deed was given to the Seminary. The present campus contains approximately one hundred acres.

In the memory and affections of every student of Drew, the historic "Mansion" and "The Forest," in the midst of which it stands, hold a secure place. The Mansion, which was given the name of Mead Hall in memory of Mrs. Drew, whose maiden name was Mead, is indelibly stamped on the minds of all as the Seminary building. To the early classes it was the one building of the Seminary, exclusive of dormitories, serving for lecture rooms, chapel, library, and offices. By recent classes it is remembered as one of more than a score of buildings—but as one unique. For on it rests the halo of age and of romance. Around its spacious porches and corridors there clings the romance of a fascinating history.

The old Gibbons Mansion, now known as the Missions Building, is one of the artistic treasures of the East. It is one of the finest examples of the colonial style of architecture extant, with the stately and dignified beauty which only massive proportions and spaciousness of setting can give. It preserves in a unique way the finest traditions of the South in a Northern setting. It is like one of the finest bits of colonial Virginia lifted up bodily and set in the midst of a northern forest.

The Forest is undated. Long before there was any village of Madison or nearby settlement, when the location was known as "Bottle Hill," the present campus was known by the same name it bears to-day, "The Forest." It first comes into clear view during the Revolution, in the fall and winter of 1776. After the evacuation of New York and the battles of Harlem Heights and White Plains in October, 1776, Washington began his masterly retreat southward across New Jersey. In the course of his retreat he led the greater part of his army along the road in front of what is now the Seminary campus. He took up his quarters at Morristown, while the division under the command of General Nathanael Greene encamped at the Forest on part of the present Seminary grounds. Lafayette and his division of the army were encamped at Basking Ridge, a few miles distant, and Washington would very frequently ride over to General Greene's headquarters to confer with Lafayette and Greene.

The property remained in its virgin state as a forest from Revolutionary times until 1833, when it was purchased by William Gibbons, then at Elizabethtown, New Jersey, a member of a distinguished and wealthy family of Savannah, Georgia. During the years from 1833 to 1836, Mr. Gibbons erected the Mansion, which was the property and home of the family for thirty-one years.

With the building of the mansion the forest underwent a transformation by which in a few years it became one of the most extensive and beautiful landed estates in the United States, stocked and equipped on a scale of grandeur and completeness which was hardly to be matched, if at all, in the northern states.

In 1867 this beautiful forest with its stately mansion and other buildings became the property of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and for nearly sixty years has been known as Drew Theological Seminary, the first theological seminary of the church to be founded as such.

The Seminary was formally opened for students November 6, 1867, and was incorporated the following year. The first class was graduated May 30, 1869. The following paragraphs from the charter of the Seminary give the names of its founders and incorporators and exhibit the purpose for which it was established:

"1. BE IT ENACTED BY THE SENATE AND GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF NEW JERSEY, That Daniel Drew, Edmund S. Janes, George T. Cobb, Matthew Simpson, Enoch L. Fancher, James M. Tuttle, Theodore Runyon, Daniel Curry, Benjamin F. Manierre, Charles B. Sing, Cornelius Walsh, John S. Porter, Francis H. Root, John P. Durbin, James Bishop, R. L. Dashiell, Daniel L. Ross, Morris D'C. Crawford, Daniel D. Chamberlain, Archibald C. Foss, John H. Ockerhausen, Leonard M. Vincent, William Wells, George F. Brown, William W. Drew, William H. Ferris, John A. Wright, John Lanahan, Charles C. North, Thompson Mitchell, and their successors in office as herein provided for, are hereby constituted a body corporate by the name of 'Drew Theological Seminary of the Methodist Episcopal Church. . . .'

"2. AND BE IT ENACTED, That the objects and purposes of the said corporation are the establishment, maintenance, and support within the State of New Jersey of a theological faculty and seminary, and of theological instruction and education therein, under the direction and supervision of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, and in consonance with the doctrines and discipline of the said Church, with power to confer on graduates of said seminary proper degrees in theology, and to exercise the prerogative of a university."

The late John McClintock was the first president and organizer of the course of instruction. He was born of Irish Protestant parents in Philadelphia in 1814. After graduating from the University of Pennsylvania in 1835, he was professor of Mathematics in Dickinson College from 1836-40, of Greek and Latin from 1840-48, editor of the Methodist Quarterly Review from 1848-56, pastor of St. Paul's Church, New York, then on Mulberry Street, 1857-60, pastor of the American Chapel, Paris, 1860-64 (when he was also corresponding editor of the Methodist, New York, 1860 ff.), again pastor of St. Paul's, 1864-65, chairman of the Centenary Committee, 1866-70, and president of Drew, 1867-70, where he died in the house built for him, now called the President's House, March 4, 1870. As an administrator and organizer, as a preacher, as a pastor, as a scholar, as a teacher, and as a Christian, he had few equals in the world of his time.

As acting president and succeeding Dr. McClintock was one who, as Professor of Historical Theology, had stood by his side since 1867, namely, Bernhard H. Nadal, then fifty-eight years of age, a Marylander of French Huguenot descent. Like Dr. McClintock, he was an able preacher, was a vigorous and polished writer, brought tact, enthusiasm, and scholarship to his two professorships, and served his day and his church with devotion and success. His sudden death on June 20, 1870, three months after the death of Dr. McClintock, was a serious blow to the Seminary.

On November 15, 1870, the Trustees elected as Drew's second president Dr. Randolph Sinks Foster, who had been professor of Systematic Theology since 1869. At the same meeting Dr. John Fletcher Hurst, then a professor in the Martin Mission Institute in Germany, was elected to fill the chair of Historical Theology, left vacant by the death of Dr. Nadal. Dr. Foster had been president of the Seminary less than two years when the General Conference, meeting at Brooklyn in 1872, elected him to the episcopacy. The Trustees reluctantly accepted his resignation as president and professor, to take effect in May, 1873.

At the annual meeting of the Trustees on May 4, 1873, Dr. Hurst was elected to succeed President Foster. Three years later came the news of the business failure of Daniel Drew. The purchase of the Gibbons estate, the fitting up of the buildings thereon, large contributions for the beginning of the library and erection of four houses for the professors had cost Mr. Drew fully $400,000. He gave a bond of an additional $250,000, on which he paid interest for salaries and upkeep of the school and which was eventually to be turned over to the Trustees as permanent endowment. In 1875 Mr. Drew suffered serious losses and was unable to pay the salaries of the professors after December of that year, and in 1876 the endowment which he had promised was entirely swept away. President Hurst at once stepped into the breach and went everywhere seeking to restore the lost endowment. The church responded loyally and in three years more was subscribed than was lost. No sooner, however, was the endowment restored than Dr. Hurst was elected Bishop by the General Conference at Cincinnati in 1880.

With the election to the presidency of Henry Anson Buttz, the second period in the history of Drew Theological Seminary may be said to have begun. President Buttz had become connected with the Seminary in 1868. He was first an adjunct professor of Greek and Hebrew, and in 1870 was made regular professor of New Testament Exegesis. He had, therefore, the memorable honor of teaching the Greek New Testament in a theological seminary for fifty years continuously. This is an almost unmatched record of service, and as his successor said when inaugurated in 1912: "We humbly acknowledge our imperishable obligation to him—scholar, exegete, preacher, writer, administrator—whose beneficent relations with this Seminary began with the opening of its doors, and whose godly life has radiated blessings upon every student who has crossed its threshold; forty-five years a teacher here, thirty-two years the universally revered president of this Seminary, now and always to all who have ever been in this school, friend, counselor, father."

President Buttz was one of the five men teaching at Drew during the 80's and the early 90's, who are affectionately spoken of by countless Drew men as "The Big Five": Henry Anson Buttz, 1868-1920; James Strong, 1868-1893; John Miley, 1873-1895; George R. Crooks, 1881-1895; and Samuel F. Upham, 1881-1904.

During this second period the John B. Cornell Library was opened on

HISTORICAL SKETCH

November 20, 1888. The building, which is in the Romanesque style of architecture, massive and with rounded details, is built in the shape of a cross. It is constructed of red Belleville stone and beautiful, hard pudding stone with red-tiled roof, and is absolutely fire proof. It was named in honor of the President of the Board of Trustees, who had fathered the enterprise and had made the first and largest subscription. The Library, which was built to hold forty thousand volumes, now contains more than one hundred and forty thousand. The next building to be erected on the campus was the large, fine dormitory, now known as Hoyt-Bowne Hall, the joint gift of the late William Hoyt and the late Samuel W. Bowne. It is a noble, Romanesque building, one hundred and sixty-nine feet long, three stories in height, with a fourth added in the center, and affording space for more than one hundred rooms.

On November 29, 1898, the corner stone of the Administration Building was laid. This splendid building was the gift of two unfailingly generous trustees, who have not permitted their names to be published in this connection. It is constructed of Harvard brick with granite trimmings. It contains class-rooms, seminar rooms and the Chapel of the Seminary. In the Chapel is the organ presented by the late Townsend Wandell.

With the death of Dr. Samuel Foster Upham, on October 5, 1904, "The Big Five" was reduced to one and the "Old Drew" was, in a sense, no more. Professor Upham was succeeded in the Chair of Practical Theology by the Rev. Ezra Squier Tipple of the class of 1887, and on July 2, 1912, Dr. Tipple was elected president. Dr. Buttz, who had been president since 1880, became president-emeritus. On the occasion of President Tipple's induction into office on October 24, 1912, The Christian Advocate said editorially, "The scene was one long to be cherished in memory. It marked the transition from an administration identified with the entire previous history of Drew Theological Seminary to that of a new era in the life of the institution, without breaking the line of personal and spiritual continuity."

During this third period in the history of Drew several buildings of importance have been added to the campus. Two of these, the Bowne Gymnasium and Samuel W. Bowne Hall, were the gifts of the great benefactor and devoted friend whose name they bear. Ground was broken for the gymnasium May 19, 1909, and the building was opened for use May 18, 1910. The cornerstone of Samuel W. Bowne Hall was laid October 24, 1912, and October 16, 1913, the hall was presented to the Trustees by Mrs. Bowne and dedicated by Bishop Luther B. Wilson. The style of architecture is Collegiate Gothic and the main dining hall is a close copy of the famous hall of Christ Church College, Oxford, where John Wesley was a student. The dining-hall is a noble room eighty-five feet in length, with a clear rise of thirty-eight feet from the floor to the center of the vaulted roof. Its side walls have a wainscot of eleven feet, and the ends eighteen feet, with seven mullion windows on either side, and larger windows at the ends.

Since 1912 five residences for professors and officers of administration have been erected. During the same time there have been many improvements made in the older buildings on the campus. In 1920 "Old Asbury" was completely remodeled, nothing remaining but the original walls. Upon these was built another story, the old flat tin roof was replaced by a slate one, and two white pilasters were placed on each side of the main entrance. Inside, the transformation made was even greater. The entire floor plan was changed, hardwood floors were laid, and a commodious social room with an old-time fireplace was furnished on the first floor. The building now accommodates sixty-three students. In the winter of 1920-21 Mead Hall was also remodeled. The partitions which were put in nearly fifty years ago to make the western wing of the building into a faculty residence were removed, hardwood floors were laid throughout the building, and an effort was made to restore "the Mansion" to its original form and color.

On October 27, 1921, there was dedicated the Samuel W. Bowne Memorial gateway, the gift of Mrs. Bowne, in memory of her husband. This beautiful gateway is built in the Collegiate Gothic style and is something more than thirty feet in height and about the same width. It is constructed of local stone, including the stones taken from the old gate houses which stood on either side of the main entrance for nearly a century.

In the last score of years Drew, in common with other theological schools, has undergone many changes. In 1904-05 the faculty numbered six professors and two instructors. Twenty years later, there were fifteen professors and twenty-two regular instructors and lecturers. That year there were 168 students, all men, from sixty-four colleges and universities; while in the year 1924-25, 290 students were enrolled, from 101 colleges and universities, from twenty-seven different states and six foreign countries.

In 1904-05 there were enrolled six post-graduate students; in 1924-25 there were forty-three. At the commencement in 1905, thirty-nine were graduated; in 1925 sixty-one persons were granted degrees and diplomas. Of these five received the degree of Doctor of Theology, one the degree of Master of Theology, thirty-seven the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, and four that of Master of Arts.

Drew Theological Seminary has grown steadily larger and greater. Of the 161 theological seminaries in the United States and Canada, Drew is the tenth largest in point of numbers. In the number of students with baccalaureate degrees from colleges of recognized standing, it ranks eighth; in the number of post-graduate students it is fourth; in the number of students earning the degree of Bachelor of Divinity it is sixth. Its buildings are more valuable than those of any seminary on the continent save one. It has the largest library of any theological school, except one, in America.

Since 1869 more than twenty-five hundred men who have entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church have received their training at Drew, and nearly two hundred and fifty Drew alumni have gone to the foreign mission fields of the Church. Surely, as one recalls the history of Mead Hall and contrasts the splendor of bygone days with the strength and influence of Drew Theological Seminary at the present time, he sees fulfilled the gracious promise and prophecy, "The glory of the latter house shall be greater than the former."

†The records of all graduate students who have received a degree or diploma from the Seminary are found under the year the degree or diploma was awarded, except in the case of a student who has received more than one degree from the Seminary, when the record appears under the year the first degree was granted. This is an alphabetical list including all students who have received the degree of Master of Theology or Doctor of Theology, students who have carried on graduate studies prior to the establishment of the Graduate School and those students who are candidates for but who have not as yet completed their work for a graduate degree.

The records of students who have received the degree of Master of Arts will be found under the College of Missions in the year in which the degree was awarded. Masters of Arts are not included among the graduate students.

INDEX

An asterisk preceding a name denotes decease. Where two groups of numerals follow a name the first indicates the class of which the student was a member; the second, the page or pages whereon the name appears. This index includes the incorporators, trustees, and members of the faculty, as well as all students. The letters and abbreviations used in the index have the following meanings:

- a*—An auditor.
- ad*—An officer of administration.
- f*—A member of the faculty.
- i*—An incorporator.
- s*—A special student.
- t*—A trustee.

Th—A student in the College of Theology who has received either the degree of Bachelor of Divinity or the diploma of the Seminary.

M—A student in the College of Missions who has received either the degree of Master of Arts or the diploma of the Seminary in the College of Missions.

E—A student who has received the diploma of the Seminary in the English Course.

sD—A student who has received the diploma of the Seminary in the Special Course.

pD—A student who has received the diploma of the Seminary in the Partial Course.

G—A graduate student who has received either the diploma in the Post-Graduate Course, the degree of Master of Theology or the degree of Doctor of Theology.

uTh—An undergraduate in the College of Theology.

uM—An undergraduate in the College of Missions.

nTh—A non-graduate of the College of Theology.

nM—A non-graduate of the College of Missions.

nE—A non-graduate of the English Course.

nG—A student who has been enrolled in the Graduate School but has not as yet received the advanced degree for which he was or is a candidate.
